FULLER CRAFT PRESENTS BEYOND THE EMBARGO
CUBAN AND AMERICAN CERAMICS
JUNE 11–OCT 18, 2009

Exhibit showcases work by a group of prominent Cuban and American artists who collaborate and exhibit together in Cuba and the United States.

(Brockton, Mass. – May 21, 2009) Fuller Craft Museum presents Beyond the Embargo: Cuban and American Ceramics from June 11 through Oct 18, 2009. Curated by Catherine Merrill, this exhibition features works in clay from 15 Cuban and American artists who, despite travel restrictions and economic embargoes against Cuba, have continued to collaborate and exhibit together in Cuba and the United States. They have, collectively, hand-carried all the Cuban artwork to the United States in suitcases.

“Beyond the Embargo embodies the inherent human need to create art, regardless of circumstances, and the rewards that come from collaborating with artists of different cultures,” said artist and Beyond the Embargo curator, Catherine Merrill. “The objects in this exhibition come from major Cuban and American artists who have been working and exhibiting together for many years.”

Beyond the Embargo represents a collaborative cultural exchange that has generated sharing of ideas, techniques, and aesthetic visions. The result is ceramic works of ingenuity and deep meaning, from functional pieces to dynamic sculptures.

Cuban and American artists represented in the exhibition include Catherine Merrill, San Francisco, CA; Nelson Domínguez, Habana, Cuba; Antonio Lewis, Nueva Gerona, Cuba; Osmany Betancourt, Varadero, Cuba; Joel Bennett, Forestville, CA; Cameron Crawford, Chico, CA; Raúl Miranda, San Luis, Cuba; Idilio López, Nueva Gerona, Cuba; Paul Andrew Wandless, Chicago, IL; Alberto Lescay, Santiago de Cuba, Cuba; Edel Arencibia, Varadero, Cuba; Juan Pablo Cárdenas, Boston, MA USA; Xiomara Gutiérrez, Santiago de Cuba, Cuba; Janna Longacre, Boston, MA; José Vásquez Xéne, Nueva Gerona, Cuba.
